

I do not feel that the public's interests are being served through the current guidelines under this rule. By expanding the number of radio stations owned by a single company within a given market, the increased cost of ownership has driven out musical genres and viewpoints that are not virtually guaranteed to be profitable.